

Referred to as a giant among men, President David O. McKay began his professional life as a teacher—a job he never quite left. Education, he once said, is “America’s most precious asset, her greatest safeguard, her most important, most potentially profitable enterprise.”

In celebration of the 75th anniversary of the College of Education, which is housed in the David O. McKay Building, Homecoming 1996 honors this great educator and prophet, who led BYU’s Board of Trustees from 1951 to 1970.

Today we still feel President McKay’s influence. His beliefs about education and the development of young men and women are as important now as they were 26 years ago, which is why we selected the theme “Echoes of Truth” for Homecoming.

Harkening to this theme, this year’s activities (running Oct. 7–13) will revolve around the truths taught and exemplified by President McKay.

We invite you to attend the David O. McKay Symposium on Education in the Harman Building on Oct. 9 and 10. Sponsored by the David O. McKay Society from the College of Education, the symposium will examine the principles of truth that govern teaching and learning.

Also highlighting this year’s Founders Day (Oct. 8), will be a special tribute to the ninth president of the Church. The Founders Day Opening Ceremonies will begin at 11 a.m. in the Marriott Center and are open to all alumni, students, and members of the community.

Building on this same spirit, the 1996 Homecoming Spectacular is going to offer a deluge of great entertainment. As part of a special tribute to President McKay’s work in the South Pacific, Living Legends—originally BYU’s Lamanite Generation—will perform, along with special guest Taran Erickson McQuivey of Hawaii. Chief Sielu Avea from Samoa will also present a genuine fire-knife dance.

Featured in the show will be the BYU Chamber Orchestra performing Fantasia’s “The Sorcerer’s Apprentice,” spotlighting none other than Disneyland’s own Mickey Mouse.

Throughout the week there will be a number of other activities, including the Honored Alumni Lecture Series, BYUSA’s Children’s Festival, the Homecoming Island Barbecue, the big parade, and the Homecoming game.

It’s going to be a week you won’t want to miss. To help in your planning, we are providing a calendar of events. Hope to see you soon.

Kind regards,
