Dear All of You,

I figure if I pass on Laura and Brandon's new e-mails to all of you, I'll have a lot of you to contact when I lose this information. It is next to impossible, a lot of the time, to reach them by telephone (all of Laura's clients or friends [or me] calling in). As far as I know, this is an up to date list of everybody in the family to contact in an emergency (who have e-mails) on both the Hall and Bartholomew sides--so some of you might want to print off the "To" heading above and keep it posted, Keep me advised if there are any changes or mistakes in the above addresses.

Subj: frog talk

I heard this one last week on NPR. Daniel Pinkwater was musing whether on not the founders of the Internet ever envisioned how e-mail would be for circulating jokes -- at any rate, it seems that's mostly what he gets in his e-mail. He thought this one was pretty good, as did I. So I (probably along with thousands of other listeners) am putting it back on the Internet, probably with a few errors in transmission.

A man walked past a frog who croaked "please pick me up." He stooped down, picked up the frog, and put it in his shirt pocket.

"I'm a princess who's been turned into a frog. If you kiss me, I'll turn back into a princess."

The man took the frog out of his pocket, looked at it, smiled, and put it back in his pocket.

"I'm beautiful and rich, and if you kiss me, I will stay with you and make you very happy."

He took the frog out again, smiled, and put it back in his pocket.

"I promise I will make you happy beyond your wildest dreams. Why won't you kiss me and turn me back into a princess?"

"Well, I'm an engineer, and I really don't have time for a girlfriend. But a talking frog is cool."
