Phone call with Nancy:

Every kid in my preschool but one is sick today. So I'm doing some ceramics with this little girl and her mom.

We won the candle this year in the neighborhood Christmas light contest. You can tell Doug got carried away. We used 18, 50 foot strands of the large outdoor lights. The house is lit up like a Gingerbread house. You can just see the meter going around and around!! I told Doug we could only turn it on the weekends but he said "We won the candle we have to turn them on every night."

Carli kind of has a boyfriend. His name is Scott. He 18 and is planning to go on a mission. I asked Carli is she liked him and she said kind of did but, "I'm going to college next year and I want to check out the guys there." She's going to UVSC next year. She's interning at ZCMI right now. She goes there for her fashion merchandizing credit. She doesn't get paid but she gets credit. She meets a lot of men. She works in perfumes and jewelry.

Speaking of men I was at the Drivers License Division because I had lost my license and one of the guys that works there was asking me questions. He said are you allergic to anything and I said yes, dogs, horses and men. He starting laughing! Carli was with me and he said you're bringing her up right.

Big news!! Doug took the garbage out this week. Every week I hear the truck coming and I charge out there as fast as I can to get the cans out. I usually miss him. Well, Doug took it out last night and this morning I went charging out there and it was already out!!

We got the truck back. It's been in the shop since last Feb. He had it for over 6 months. We knew he would do a good paint job on it if he would ever get it done. We had to take and pick up Doug from work every day and it's been a real drag. The truck now has a new maroon colored paint job.

Love, Nancy and Doug
