

The Argyle Mines in Western Australia is the largest diamond producer in the world. The diamonds are mined by surface quarrying. It supplies one quarter of the world's needs.