

"What every woman should know about business" and we discussed what might happen if the business didn't "go."

~~She still~~ We also found that another woman planned to open a "plant" store about the same time.

Nancy felt she should call "git along" on Daug's salary & give the store time to "go".

I told her to quit her job & work for me for a month helping paint & paper.

I had the place completely renewed, new pictures, & a new curtain put in. We painted the house brown with off white trim on porch & window & Nancy cut out plywood letters "Nancy's" to put on the front. She later got a nice sign for the parking area in front.

We brought in a lot of fill (house is on a hill) and put spats on all the corners of the house.

Nancy has an early American paper she had on one wall of the bedroom & in her home & used it in both bath the Bedroom & Livingroom. Daug sanded the floors & waxed & varnished them.

But the walls - when we removed seven layers of wall-paper we found badly cracked porous old plaster. One wall in the L. R. we put in cedar. We dry-walled the ceilings (which helped greatly) & put in spot lights & fluorescent.

While I & Tracy were in the East, Nancy papered the Living Room & Daug put up the cedar & Nancy put in brick on the chimney in the L. R. When I got back we stripped & papered the B.R. & put cedar on the ^{West} wall. I spray painted the closet brown.

By now 15 she was ready to open her shop. We finished the floor, put up the huge ruffled curtains - she installed her merchandise, & was in business.
