Dear Halls,

This is getting a bit monotonous, isn't it? There is evidence that a fourth child of Wm. I had slaves. I finally got around to checking out an e-mail I got last week from another cousin, Mary Lou Spindt, met via the Internet. She is descended from William Hall I's dau. Elizabeth (sister of our Anthony), who married Isaiah or Elijah Pemberton (not George, who was Isaiah's father). Mary Lou is the one who found Wm. I's original will at Winchester.

Anyway, I copied out George Pemberton's will last week when I was looking through Frederick abstracts, trying to find the will of George Richardson, supposed father of Hannah, wife of Wm. I. Lo and behold, George in 1756 willed his "slaves and movable estate" to his "eldest son" Elijah (who, according to the Ancestral File and Margaret Adams and some other researchers, is supposedly the same person as what somebody transcribed as "Isaiah"). Isaiah (Elijah) m. Elizabeth, dau. of Wm. I four years earlier in 1752. I still have no evidence, though, that our ancestor Anthony had slaves, though it is starting to look like the holding of slaves was deep-set family tradition.

'Til later, Sherlene
