

What about the State Constitutions.

Specific

of Paris in 1783 ~~was~~, where Adams & Jay broke agreement with French & made a separate peace with England, it became obvious that the Articles needed to be changed.

Efforts at change resulted in an American Constitution which has served us ~~well~~ remarkably well as a nation, and which most of the people, especially after the ~~adoption~~^{inclusion} of the bill of rights was considered divinely inspired.

Certainly, to say the least, it was a remarkable document and the result of two centuries of political experimentation by the American colonies.

~~The~~ I feel the ~~maximum~~ degree of individual liberty and the minimum amount of institutional restraint enjoyed by Americans before 1763 were.
