

Education of Southern blacks was not as good as Northern ones. Wealthy parents sent children North or to England.
Educators somewhat laughed at - a man should be "manly".
I am also expected to be manly & manly. Spoke Southern gentleman agreements.

In Europe before the Revolution African began writing against the child was innocent and only became sinful because of his environment. began to catch on in the U.S.

Charles Fanning, a former slave narrator who was connected with the great newspapers which influenced people somewhat taught that man could do something about his own situation.
The revolution didn't come right out

Thinner, placed possibility of universal salvation.

In the South the death rate was even higher because of malaria & yellow fever. One of constant concerns of parents was children's health.
Parents death rate was high too.
There were some household rules that children not related to either parent ^{because of} death + marriage Acephie in southern homes ^{was} not as strict as the ~~other~~ Bay the time of the revolution in the North etc. had dropped. Children knew grandparents.
Kinship network formed + was more important in the South.
By time of Revolution there were grievances ^{not} taught from "emphatic" (for weak women mind) making, sewing, & ornateness of French (for dance) dancing, music, handicrafts - "Jody Rode" - "Jody could be a cultured lady -

include weeds