Dear Trumbly,

Congratulations, Barry and Virginia! We were so excited about the good news and relieved that everything went well. I was upset that I wasn't home to get your call, Barry - It would have been great to talk to you. But Fitz had all the details. Send a family group sheet if you can - which reminds me, does anybody know what happened to the original copy of the one we sent last time? I was very upset that it wasn't returned - I am sending along the copy that came back but I really do want the one in Tracy's hand, <sup>writing</sup> please.

I'm sorry this isn't typed but I am not a successful typist and I'll try very hard to keep this legible. Tracy sends his love but he's swamped right now (nothing unusual about that for any of us, eh?) and I'm the scribe this time. I just love the family letter - I ~~must~~ think it's fabulous. Fitz's yours is always one of my favorites, so don't apologize. It strikes me funny to read yours 6 (or 8... or 10... or 12...) weeks of it that I Xeroxed the whole thing for several friends to read, and to have for my file.

My mother claims that the invitation lists for the conferences were drawn up from the subscription list of Ms. Magazine. I would like to know whether that is true. The conference in Washington State created quite a stir - the "anti-abortionists", etc., won there. Sherlene, what were the origins of these conferences? - I have NEVER HEARD

A WORD about one in California and would like to know whether there was to be one in each state. I know it had to do with the E.R.A., but was it a Congressional mandate, or what?

Dauid, we really appreciate the work you're doing with DBT and Mega. Karen, I would like to hear more from you about your expertise in organizational theory - is this general theory or as it applies to business? Sounds interesting. How are the boys? With Mark's November birthday is he starting school this fall or next?

It broke my heart to hear about Grandpa Sanford. We remember him in our prayers later when we live so close. I can hardly wait till Jay & Marty have the key to their new house so we can see it.

Nancy, I liked the haircut you gave Jay while she was in Utah. Nancy sent us a unique photograph of Tracy Jr. - picking his nose at what must have been about 4 years old - that she'd enlarged from a family group snapshot. Tracy got a kick out of it. Enjoyed your note, too, Nancy - thanks. Are you moved into the farm house now?
Are you living upstairs, or down? Sure would like to see Carli.

Mom, I don't know where you'll be when you read this, but the weekend of August 26th when you expect to be out here coincides with the biggest garden show of the year (21 garden clubs) at Golden Gate Park in San Francisco.
We'll tentatively plan to go see it. Tracy intends to take a couple of days off and he and Dad can go looking at junk if they want to. Have you gotten to do any general on your trip? Missed hearing from Charlotte incidentally.

Sherlene, I didn't mind the extra weight a bit - I admit I was flabbergasted when I saw the volume of it, but reading your accounts was a very storing experience I was so impressed with the importance

Constantly.

We are in a brief respite from the welfare Cannery - between apricots and pears. The apricots (which they buy from Del Monte) were So BAD that Tracy really felt it was something of a disgrace. We have also had several inventories. I have not gone because of the new baby and the difficulty of getting good babysitters so Tracy has more or less done my share too. I've been tired a lot but in good spirits generally so it compensates a little. Richard Alexandre is a pleasant baby, but more unpredictable than the last three have been. We had a picture taken on Tuesday which I'm supposed to be able to pick up on the 24th (August). By now he looks like all the others anyway <sup>NO, NOT TRUE</sup> so just look at our old pictures. Speaking of pictures, THANK YOU, Sherlene, for the ones you sent.

I've been going through all the children's clothes this week and last, to get ready for school. Girls are more fun that way, but boys are easier (three pairs of jeans and some T-shirts and you're set).

Zina has outgrown everything and all the hand-me-downs from other families (which we gratefully accept) happened to fit Mary as well. But between fabric remnants and the thrift stores we have done remarkably well for her - in fact the biggest <sup>single</sup> expense was new socks! Zina cracks me up - she is very prissy but she can laugh at herself too. She was playing at some friends' home - they have two children older than Zina and a daughter Mary's age (Mary was there too) and Miriam (the mother) told me that Zina kept complaining that all there was to do was "baby stuff." This morning I said "Zina, I hear that the de Schweinitzes only have baby toys" - She blushed crimson and giggled hard and said "I'm so embarrassed." On Monday she and Tracy were busy at some "secret project" - When they rushed outside I followed them (discreetly, I hope) and found that they had taped a sign to the window (Zina's work) which said "DANCINE 10¢ FAST OR SLOW
YORE CHOUS" (she later <sup>fixed</sup> this to "C #015")

They didn't get much action on the porch so they moved the sign out to the sidewalk. Tracy asked me if I thought 10¢ was a fair price. They came in about an hour later and decided that that wasn't the way to earn money. They said several people walked by (Gina's words now) "and every person that walked by read it and they all smiled but nobody stopped. One lady was walking with her friend and she laughed and said 'Look at this' to her friend." Tracy said, "Mommy, why did that lady laugh?"

I have made a few changes in my Christmas Story (improvements, I think) which I'll send along if anyone asks me to. Incidentally, did you know that Claus and Nicholas are etymologically the same name? I have an article in mind about Christmas trees which I'd really like to write. Of course I still haven't finished up that stuff on the women in the Book of Mormon either. Then there are a couple of books or articles I'd like to do on jokes and riddles - Ah me, with my abilities we catch up with my ambitions, I wonder?

I've been teaching the 17-year-old class

We mean out from the club is being offered in Sunday School for a couple of months now. I really thoroughly enjoy it - even though they are a thoroughly non-homogeneous and challenging group. I miss Tracy's Sunday Sch class, though.

NOT TRUE EITHER

Tracy's Hebrew class is not being offered this year and he's very disappointed. I don't know what we're going to do - the only alternative is a class in Redwood City that's $4000 per quarter. It's a good week at work because "the big boss" is gone on vacation.

Robert just ran in and yelled "It's fifty-o'clock, Mom!" He turns almost everything into opera, bellowing every sentence ~~recitatively~~ fashion. He taught Susanna her almost-first words: "Shut up!" (He learned it from the two teen-agers next door.) There's a lot of sibling rivalry between them - also obvious affection. Susanna's favorite activity right now (typical, typical) is running - away from us. My favorite line right now is "I used to be an expert on children. Now I'm an expert on teenagers."

I'll save the back of this page in case Tracy has a minute to write something.
MUCH LOVE - BETSY

P.S. I wish that one of Grandpa Langford's college age grandchildren could live with him while attending Oberlin State. It really wouldn't be impossible. I'm sure he'd be glad to have anyone who's interested in the history of the place. We just have to find a way to make it work. I've been thinking about it for some time.

we need 27 people per night (2 1/2 hr shifts) for 10 nights - response was about 85% of the quota for 4 weeks of apricot canning - hope we can do as well for pears, with vacation season in full swing.

I meant to replace my $10 Timex which I lost and couldn't find a mechanical watch for less than $14, so I finally bought an LED watch from 1901 Instrument, for $8.95. (reconditioned).
If you'd told me I could get such a gadget for 9 - a year ago I'd have laughed in your face. Amazing the results of automated high volume ~~sales~~ production in the electronic industry. It gains 0.8 ± .1 second per hour, but I think I can adjust it to ± .1 sec/hr, which is as precise as any navigators in previous centuries could have wished for. It tells hr/min/sec/month/date and I really am enjoying teaching the gospel doctrine class. Also recently taught a seminar for two couples preparing to go to the temple.

As I've been trying to systematize the various details of the endowment to further my own understanding, I've been really struck with the tremendous correlation, overlap, and simplicity of it - I'm sure there's much more to it than I understand, but it's thrilling to at last know that there is a simple mnemonic scheme to remembering it all.
