Dear Family

Our ward was divided, or rather added to this past month. Four ward boundaries were shaken up and moved around. We lost a couple of blocks here in town and also some families from the county but we gained two blocks from across main street and nearly doubled our Primary. We remained in the 4th Ward but we almost feel like strangers in our own ward because of all the new faces. All but one member of the Bishopric is from the two new blocks. We had a very small Primary before the change and it is so nice to see the Primary Room filled.

Bryan has been working hard in the yard, and has taken many loads to the dump. We hired a neighbor boy who has a tractor to come and dig up our back lawn. It's so weedy and lumpy that we decided to tear it up and start all over.

I painted one wall in our bathroom and about gave up half way through. Bryan came to my rescue and with his help I finished it. It turned out so nicely that I'm encouraged to try another wall -

Sarah and Hannah enjoyed an Easter egg hunt at Grandma + Grandpa Hall's. Grandma Hall served up a sweet + sour Pork dinner with Strawberry Pie for desert. Yum!

Nyrum's latest intrigue is the flour bin. See you later!
Love, Charlotte.
