Dear Family,

The family letters ~~strip~~ dribbled in slow this month.

Last night I began taking a night class on word processing. It is almost like paying for being part of a users group. The class cost $39⁰⁰ with about 20 students. We are using "Wordstar". It is going to be worth while. The instructor is quite knowledgeable. Charlotte and I are going to buy a computer eventually.

Last week I was talking to a friend out at the job. He is a surveyor. We discussed going into business together. My priority is law school. If it doesn't work out then serious discussions on going into private practice will ensue. That won't be until June or so.

We had an enjoyable Christmas in spite of 3 kids being ill. The cold and cough season is here. Everyone is well now. Willis has not been ill, fortunately. Colic is bad enough. He seems to be coming out of it slightly. He smiled last week. He has even had a good day or two. We are glad he is sleeping at night.

Love,

Bryan, Charlotte & Kids
