

Nancy, the youngest, was born on April Fools Day in 1958. She was a free spirited child with a creative streak that went many directions. As a child she roamed the neighborhood and Wyview village on her little red trike, liked to sell Kool-Aid or produce from the garden, and once without permission, sold her mothers freshly bottled dill pickles at a BYU football game. She also spent her free time creating plays and pageants to perform with the neighborhood kids, or building huts in trees and burying treasure below them, and dragging the garden hose into the sand-pile to create large mud puddles. In high school her favorite classes were home economics, sewing, drawing, pottery, photography, yearbook, drama, journalism, jewelry making and boys. She was in the Art Club, and won several awards for her creative projects. She illustrated newspaper ads for Reams (Boots & Jeans), Check Point Clothing along with many others, and sold the turquoise jewelry she made at school for extra income. On March 1, 1976 she married her high school sweetheart Doug Mecham, and they were sealed in the temple 16 years later. They had 4 children; Carli, Chelsey, Doug Jr. (D.J.) and Keslee. Nancy's entrepreneur skill led her to several businesses in her life including a plant and basket store, involvement in a consignment store with her mother, a ceramic business, leaded glass windows, an internet business, and has influenced her children to raise money for themselves and local charities with their own lemonade stands. She enjoys Oil painting, home design and decorating, crafts, sewing, entertaining and gardening. She's actively involved in the church, and has held many callings including; First Counselor in the Young Women's program, Beehive teacher, Enrichment committee member, Enrichment Leader, Primary teacher, and Activity Committee Chairman. She's been a devoted caregiver to her multi-handicapped son, her husband who was involved in a life threatening accident in 1994, both of her parents in their elderly years, and despite her severe allergies -- several stray cats in the neighborhood.
